The prevalence of diabetes mellitus in Spain is increasing and it is associated with a higher risk of complications and death than previously considered. National Health System covers almost the entire population, although there are social inequalities. Diabetes and its complications are the second cause of mortality in our country. The prevalence is 15.9% and it is increasing; it affects mainly women and the elderly. Type 2 diabetes mellitus is the most common type. Hypertension, hyperlipidemia, obesity, and physical inactivity are the main factors involved in its prevalence. Its prevalence increases in parallel to the increase in the aging of the population and with the increase in adiposity. It is estimated that there will be a prevalence of 25.6% in 2025. The main complications are cardiovascular, nephropathy and retinopathy.

There is an important association with the presence of some chronic diseases such as hypertension, dyslipidemia and obesity.Effect of alpha-interferon on the proliferation and differentiation of multinucleated giant cells induced by interleukin 82157476af
